A Lanatic Pigeon

Liem a Letter to Sature

A white fantail pigeon lived with hi family in a pigeon house in our stable yard. He and his wife had been origin ed and admired to see their children o became the victim of the infatuation am about to describe. No eccentricity Every purchaser of $5.00 worth of goods from our large and well-selected retail stock, consist-whatever was remarked in his conduct until one day I chanced to rick up somewhere in the garden a ganger bee bottle of the ordinary brown stone de-scription I flung it into the yard where it fell immediately below the pigeoi house. That instant idown flew the paterfamilias, and to my no small as-tonishment, commenced a series of gainflections, evidently doing homage to the buttle. He strutted round and round it, howing, and scraping, and cooing, and performing the most ludicrous antics I ver beheld on the part of an enamore pageon. Nor did he cease these per formances until we moved the house

What proved that this singular aburra tion of instinct had become a fixed delusion was this Whenever the bottle wa thrown or placed in the yard-no matte upright—the same ridiculous acene was came flying down with quite as great slacity as when his peas were thrown out for dinner, to continue his antics as times this would go on for hours, the other members of the family treating his movements with the most contemption and tilerent 2, and taking no notice of the bottle At last it became the regular amusement with which we entertained our visitors, to see this erratic pigeon making love to the interesting object of his affections, and it was an entertain

The Future of Washington, D. C.

Special correspondence of the Cocinnati Commercial In a sermon on the future of Washington, preached Sunday night by one of the most prominent ministers of the city, he took occasion to predict wonderful things. It was remarked after the sermon that perhaps he had a few corner lots for sale cheap for cash, but this is no doubt an pacharitable view of the case. Be this as it may, he made some astonish. ing statements. One was in the shape of a prediction that Washington, twenty-five years hence, would have 1,000,-000 population. The population of the city proper is now about 160,000. Where the 840,000 additional are to come from in the next twenty five years would passle a philosopher. Making a liberal estimate on the increase of the country at large for the twenty-five years, and allowing the same per cent of increase to Washington, and the population of the capital in 1905 will be about 265,000. There is, in truth, nothing to support a city here but the fact that it is the seat of government, and a much larger population would mean a multiplication of offices. As a matter of fact there are enough offices now to conduct the affairs of the government without excessive labor, even if not another should be added for ten years. The growth of Washington in the future depends a good deal on the dispesition of the people at large to submit to taxation sufficient to maintain the grandeur of a great central capital city.

Advertisements as a Newspaper Feature.

From the Albania Press Good, fresh advertisements are not the least interesting and valuable portion of a newspaper. We have been told that a prominent New York journalist hoped to see the day when the profits on the circulation of his paper would be so large that he could dispense with advertising altogether. We think he is mistaken in his opinion of advertising and newspapers. tisements are news. They tell the readers what they want to know-where goods can be bought, what they are sold for, who has houses to rent or sell, who wishes to purchase real estate, where employment and labor can be obtained, and a thousand other things that they want to know. It is an error to suppone that only the editors and reporters supply news worth reading. The skill-deal of information that would prove valuable to them. WASHINGTON, May 4.—The message of the president withdrawing the New York nominations, which are regarded sage was received from the governor in as belonging to the stalwart wing of the party, is the only subject of public interest here to night. Everybody is copies of the muster-out rolls of the talking of or speculating about it. An Associated Press reporter, in seeking reliable information, saw representative men of both sides. The president is firm and determined. He has been urged by close friends for some time to take an aggressive measure, but he heattated, hoping that some way of maintaining harmony in the party consistent with his honor and dignity, might be found. He could not surrender any part of his executive prerogative, so he has held by refusing to withdraw Robertson or consenting to any compromise. He expresses Limsell on all occasions as anxious to do full justice to both wings of the New York Republicans. When Conkling carried through the Republican caucus his pelicy, which was directly antagonistic to that of the administration with regard to Robertson, the president felt impelled to take some action. Vice-President Arthur and Mr. Platt were at the White house this morning by the president's request, and he talked frankly to them. the president learned positively that nothing short of permitting Robertson's nays were called. A call of the absentees was made, which showed an evident increase of the vote.

While the call was progressing more absentees came in and addressed the speaker, but he refused to recognize Mr. Luddington called the speaker's attention to rule 55, and was informed that he would not be recognized until the clerk had finished calling the roll Some one demanded the verification of the roll, and the clerk was ordered to verify, proceeding at once with his work. Mr. Luddington and Mr. Smith stood shouting at the highest pitch, "Mr. Speaker, Mr. Speaker," but the speaker stood pale with anger and gave them no attention.

The excitement was now at its height and confusion reigned. Nothing could

The vote was announced-6 year, 11 nays, and the bill failed to pass for want of but one more vote. Many demanded that the vote be retaken and some one moved to adjourn. Nearly every member was on his fee talking or shouting vehemently, and the speaker put the motion and declared the house adjourned on a vote the year without calling for the nays. He threw his gavel into the desk and left the stand, evidently in no enviable frame of mind.

The members of the house not finding it convenient to sit were still on their feet standing at their desks. They he inaugurated it to day. He intends at the ruling and decision of the speak to keep it up, and to use every effort to confirm Robertson. There were five during the day to be the champions of the people, contended that the 55th rule of the house had been overridden roughshod, and that the position taken by the speaker was unwarranted. The rule alluded to provides that "any fifteen members shall be authorized to demand that the absent members present themselves for duty," etc.

Mr. Young, of Massac, and Mr. Little, of Fayette, came in and claimed that they had not voted, as they were out only for a moment and did not think the debate would close so coon. They were not recognized. Mr. Linegar, in a great state of excitement, walked down toward the speaker's desk and gesticulating said, "The speaker of this house organized the committee and in need of the improvement was explained he is a damned scoundrel.' [Great In the excitement following the declared adjournment, some rampant enthusiast moved to reassemble the house. Mr. Linegar was called to the chair.

> Calling the House to order-as of those who assumed to war against these corporations, against railroads and mo-nopolies—by a few well-directed raps on the deak with his band knuckles, he said he would preside only to consider a resolution of protest against the outrageous action of the railroad Speaker who had done all he could to defeat the bill.

Mr. Linegar made a vigorous attempt to secure order, but failed utterly. Some one then moved to adjourn until 8:30 p.

During the time devoted toward's reaching this point a fierce war of words was going on between two members, and a number of friends had to interfere to prevent violence. Here and there were ted-wanted somebody to prove what had been charged against him. A more thoughtful one suggested that the proving business had better not be entered into; that was something not to be desir

THE following clipped from an exchange is very sensible, and should be taken into consideration by all parents who A Stranger from Cisco Knocked Down are interested in the advancement of their children: "When a child begins to read it becomes delighted with the newspaper, because it reads of names, and it will progress accordingly. A newspaper, in one year, is worth a quarter's schooling to a child. Every father must consider that information is connected with advancement. The mother of the family being one of its heads, and having a more immediate charge of children, should herself be instructed. Twenty Cattle Killed and Wabash Holling Stock Damaged to the Extent of $15,000.

A damaging railway accident occurred at Illiopolis, 16 miles west of Decatur, on the main line of the Wabash, St. Louis named Preston L. Yancy, from the town and Pacific railway this morning at about seven o'clock, by which one large mogul were completely wrecked, together with one baggage car and three or four cattle be greated by a kar e and re-knowable cars. Eighteen or twenty cattle were killed outright and several seriously injured. The engineer and fireman of the westbound passenger train were slightly injured, and Express Messenger J. L. Bowen was bruised by the jar.

It appears from the reports in circulation that an east-bound freight train had left Buffale without orders, and arriving to allow the west-bound fast passenger train No. 3 to pass by; but on pulling into the side-track one of the couplings of the freight cars broke, and the train divided on the main track. The forward section of the freight train backed on to the main track to make the connection fog to flag the on-coming passenger train passenger engineer to see the danger sigand until too late to avoid the accident. The passenger was going at full speed-30 miles per hour-and ran into the freight train with a deafening crash, piling up the cars and scattering about heavy parts of the ponderous machinery in a promiseuous manner. It is estimated that the loss will foot up $15,000, and that it will take 48 hours to clear the wreck. A special train was sent to Illiopolis

POINTING to the latter X, "What s that " asked a schoolmaster of a lad whose father seems to have been born before the age of school bondand compulsory attendances. "Daddy's name." "No, it is not, sit—it is X." "No, sir; it aint," said the boy. "it's daddy's nume, I've seen him write it often." At another school, in reproving a youth for the exercise of his fists, a schoolmaster said "My lad, we fight with our heads here." The youth reflected for a moment, and replied that butting was not considered for at his last school.
